

The New Jersey standards for the Do Not Call legislation exceed that of the federal government and should be preserved as a higher standard with improved benefits. I am almost sure that the FCC would not permit a lower standard, and prefer to think that variation among states using federal rules as a guideline for a minimum standard is a good policy.